WORCESTERS BEAT LINCOLNS AT FOOTBALL

Unbeaten Soccer Team
Lose 3-1.

VISITOR'S GOALKEEPER SAVES PENALTY SHOT

The 2nd. Bn. Worcestershire Regiment, who arrived in Hong Kong
this morning by the Neurulia en route for Shanghai, secured a well deserved triumph this morning when they overcame the unbeaten Lincolns League team by 3 goals to 1
after leading by two goals at the interval.

The match was one of the best of the season and was witnessed by over 1,000 spectators.

In the junior game the Lincoln
Boys won by three clear goals.

In the match between the Battalion teams the Worcesters gave an inspiring exhibition, their splendid ground passes enabling them to assert an early superiority
over the Lincolns, who were not as well-balanced as their rivals.

After five minutes play
Archer netted for the Worcesters, and immediately after Hocquard hit the cross-bar.

Five minutes later Jones increased the Worcesters' lead. Before half-time the Lincolns were awarded a penalty, but Hubbard brilliantly saved Hocquard's shot.
Hubbard's play between the
sticks was the feature of the game.

Commencing the second half with a two goals lead the Worcesters went further ahead through a goal by Mallin.

In the last two minutes of the game Higgins scored the best goal of the match when he converted a centre from Hocquard.

Lincolns—Heath, Turner and Boden;
Dudley, Cook and Betti; Boldry, Mc-Guinness, Higgins, Ridley and Hocquard (Captain).
Worcesters—Hubbard, Egleston,
Shepherd, Richards, Smith, Wilson;
Frogdard, Sgt. Delaney, Mallin,
Archer, and Jones.

SOUTH CHINA ATHLETES BACK FROM NANKING

All Members Satisfied
With Tour.

KWOK NOT TO TURN PROFESSIONAL

A large crowd of Chinese sportsmen were present at the Kowloon Wharf when the Empress of Canada, carrying the Hong Kong and Canton athletes from the Nanking Games, docked early this morning.

Mr. C. H. Tsang, Secretary of the South China Athletic Association,
was among the many who greeted
the teams on their arrival this morning. It is understood that a dinner in honour of the athletes will be given in the near future.

The Hong Kong and Canton
teams were made up of 225 members.
With a few exceptions all arrived here this morning. The remainder are due to-morrow by the s.s. Tjine-gara.

Cheng Kwai-leung, the well-known soccer forward from Singapore, also came down with the teams. Having played for Hong Kong in Nanking he is staying over a day or two in the Colony, and will witness to-morrow's League
game between South China and St.
Joseph's.

Hong Kong, who were beaten by Shanghai in the Soccer Championship, won Mayor Wu's handsome silver cup when they beat the Shanghai eleven by 23 goals to nil
when on their way to the Games.

Canton, who were assisted by Li Tin-nang, Ip Pak-wa, Fung, King-
cheong, Tam Kong-pak of South
China, and "Darkie" Chen, of the Athletic, were beaten by Shanghai
in the final in Nanking.

Canton Skipper's Opinion.
Referring to the brawl in which
two young Chinese boys were badly injured following the attempt of
over a hundred soldiers of the 88th Division of the Nanking Army to secure free admission to a women's basket-ball match, Li Tin Sang,
skipper of the Canton soccer team,
said, "I think it is very regrettable
that we have such men in our Army.
The matter, however, has been concluded by the discharge of the guilty
persons."

With the exception of this incident all the members spoke very highly of the Games and the organisation which made them a success.

The report that the Chin-

mounting financial difficulties of the Government.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei and Mar-

nance Minister, pressing the latter to withdraw his resignation.—Reu-

GRAVE ARAB RIOTS IN PALESTINE

MANY RIOTERS KILLED AS POLICE FIRE

DEMONSTRATION HELD IN DEFIANCE OF HIGH COMMISSIONER

LONDON, TO-DAY.

SERIOUS RIOTING IN JAFFA AND JERUSALEM, IN-VOLVING LOSS OF LIFE, BROKE OUT YESTERDAY AFTER-NOON, FOLLOWING THE FORMATION OF A PROCESSION IN JAFFA IN DEFIANCE OF THE ORDER ISSUED BY THE HIGH COMMISSIONER OF PALESTINE LT.-GENERAL SIR AR-THUR GRENFELL WAUCHOPE.

Complete quiet, however, now reigns throughout
Palestine with the exception of Jaffa.

One member of the police force and three rioters were killed while seven other rioters are reported to have been killed. Two police and 20 rioters suffered serious injuries. A large number of arrests has been made.

A communique issued by the High Commissioner of Palestine
states that the Arab Executive Committee had announced their intention to hold on October 27 a political demonstration in Jaffa similar to that disallowed in Jerusalem on October 13.

The High Commissioner received
the President and members of the Arab Executive on October 26 and informed them that no political procession or demonstration would be allowed in Jaffa, but that the members of the Executive would be permitted to proceed to the District Office and there hand in their protest or manifesto to the District Commissioner for transmission to His Excellency.

Despite the High Commissioner's prohibition a procession was formed yesterday at 12.30 in the neighbourhood of the Government Office in Jaffa.
It began to move and was ordered to disperse. This injunction was disobeyed and the police were assaulted.

The police were compelled to make a baton charge to disperse the mob
which, however, reformed and again attacked the police. Shots were fired from the crowd at the police,
who were compelled in self-defence
to fire a few rounds under control.
By two p.m. the rioters were dispersed by the police and quiet was restored.

Reports show that the police
throughout displayed great control and forbearance. The military were not called upon, as the police
had the situation in hand.—British

POOR WEATHER CONDITIONS.

London, To-day.

A car equipped with an ordinary London Omnibus engine establish-

lands yesterday when in pouring rain George Eyston, the famous British ace, broke the existing record of 100.75 m.p.h. for the highest speed ever achieved by a diesel-engined vehicle.

Although high wind and the wetness of the track necessitated the use of heavily ribbed, instead of facing tyres, tended to slow down
his car, Eyston covered the flying mile over two runs at an average speed of 101.933 m.p.h.

His maximum speed of 106.647
m.p.h. was attained over the second run of the kilometre attempt.—Brit-

MR. PANTER IN GAOL

PERMITTED
INTERVIEW
WITH CONSUL

Charged Based On London Article.

INFORMATION ON HITLER'S
STORM TROOPS

Berlin, To-day.

Mr. Noel Panter, the London "Daily Tele-
graph's" special correspondent, who was arrested by the Nazi's on Tuesday last, will be tried in the Supreme Court
at Leipzig, on a charge
of treason against the State.

The penalty for his alleged offence may be
death of penal servitude
for life.

The British Consul-General in Munich, Mr. H. W. Gaisford, who since Tuesday last has been denied access to Mr. Noel Panter, the Munich correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph," was yesterday permitted to visit him at Munich Police Headquarters, where he is held under "Protective custody."

Panter is to be charged at Leipzig, under Article 92 of the Penal Code, with high treason
and espionage. It is assumed that Panter's arrest is in connection with his descriptive report, reproduced in last Monday's "Daily Telegraph," of the parade of "Storm Troops,"
which Chancellor Hitler addressed at Kehlheim, on Sunday.

Article 92 of the Criminal Code provides for punishment by penal servitude for not less than two years of anyone who deliberately "communicates to or another Government, or makes publicly known, State secrets or news of which he knows that to keep them secret is necessary for the welfare of the German Empire or the Federal State as against that other Government."

The Consul-General found that Panter was in good health, although pale from his confinement. He has been well treated and allowed to buy what he wanted.

It is stated that the charge is based on the "accumulation of information concerning the
"Storm Troops" and Hitler Guards, which was used so as to convey the impression that there were military formations and that Germany was thus violating the Treaty of Versailles."

Panter declared that his message was sent in the course
of carrying on only his ordinary occupation of journalist and in the course of sending ordinary messages.

Mr. Gaisford has asked Bavarian Government for permission for a legal adviser to visit Panter.—Reuter and Brit-

Nursery Calls For Use Of Colours

Sense Of Ownership Met By Cupboards.

GAY TONE IMPORTANT

We all know that childhood is a more impressionable time of life than adult years. And most of us are coming to know not only the influence of surroundings and their impressionistic value but also the specific influence of different colours.

In no room is colour more requisite than in the nursery, and this room of all others in the house, is the most fun to decorate. Do it yourself, or at least do the planning.

In furnishing the nursery it is necessary first of all to make it attractive and practical to meet the child's needs. From an early age he develops a decided sense of ownership, and an instinct to possess his own particular niche in the household—his room.

From the standpoint of his comfort the furnishings of the room should be simple and durable. To further establish the feeling of ownership there should be receptacles for toys, shelves within reach for books, and possibly a blackboard to preserve the walls from his early artistic urge.

Sunning and Hygienic.

For the child's physical welfare the room should be light, well ventilated and sunny. Its furnishings easy to clean, which means that every surface should be washable. This room is to be the child's sanctuary. Here he not to be scolded for putting smudgy hands on the walls or leaving small fingerprints on the furniture.

All children love gay colours. A baby begins by clutching at brightly coloured beads and later gurgles with joy over his red fire engine. The keynote to the youngster's heart is through colour, and plenty of it. Careful mothers once felt that only white or neutral greys represented cleanliness and sanitation in the nursery, but with the wide variety of beautiful colours to be had in wall and furniture finishes at the present time this idea has been abandoned. For as long as any surface is easily washed and cleaned sanitation is insured.

Painted furniture can be acquired unfinished and painted to suit any colour scheme. This type of furniture is easy to keep clean, and also, when it becomes marred and worn, as is inevitable, can be refinished from time to time at little expense.

"NINE-TILL-SEVEN" DRESSES.

Useful Frocks For All Occasions.

The "Nine-till-Seven" dress has been designed for wearing on all occasions during the day beneath a top coat. It is made of a new jersey weave which has nothing of the youthful gaucheness of old-time "woolies."

One of these useful frocks is spotted, with plain cuffs and facings, yet it is woven in one piece.

CRINKLED CREPE FOR DANCE FROCKS

Many Accessories

The new crinkled crepe is transparent, and will be used a lot for winter dance frocks.

One plain blue crepe evening dress seen recently made outstanding by its accessories, had long gloves of smoky gunmetal-grey crepe-de-Chine and orchids at the bodice.

PLUMAGE FOR AUTUMN HATS

Feathers Seen In Many Forms.

ATTENTION TO NECKLINE

This season's feather hats are delightful. For evening wear nothing could be smarter. And the feather trimming on the new fall hats mark them distinctly as autumn 1933.

Evening gloves trimmed with feathers are new and charming and perishable. But the fashionable woman is weary of so much economy and is ready to be whimsical on occasion.

Not infrequently feathers are used for the collar on daytime frocks. Necklines continue to command much attention. Collars of every description are seen in the new fall showings. The cotton and starched lingerie touches remain with us, but have given up some of their popularity in favour of the silk and soft wools for the winter months.

Pour over macaroni, mix thoroughly and serve immediately.

Wash and soak 1 pint of lentils, and place in saucepan with a carrot, 2 turnips, 2 onions, 2 sticks of celery, all cut very small. Pour over 1 quart of water or stock, add pepper and salt, stew slowly for 2½ hours. Then add some slices of cooked haddock and simmer for a few minutes, so that the fish will warm through. Just before serving, add a teaspoonful of tomato ketchup.

1½ pound chestnuts; 3 eggs; 2 teaspoons sugar; 2½ oz. butter. Boil the chestnuts for half an hour, strain and, after removing shells and skins, rub them through a wire sieve with a wooden spoon. Mix the sugar and 2 oz. of the butter to a cream, add the chestnuts and eggs well beaten, and stir all well together. Take a tin greased with the remaining half ounce of butter, place the mixture in it in the shape of little hills, and bake in a moderate oven for 20 to

CLUB SOCCER TEAM SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED FOR TO-DAY

FINAL CRICKET TRIAL

Change Of Captains Significant.

T. A. PEARCE MAY BE FIT
(By ATHOLE)

It is expected that the Hong Kong Interport Cricket eleven will be made known this evening following the final trial, which commences at 2 p.m. on the Club ground.

The change of captaincy of the Rest eleven and the consequent inclusion of Harry Owen Hughes in Tom Hayward's eleven looks significant. It cannot, however, be believed that Hayward's eleven is the Interport side without such players as C. C. Garthwaite, A. H. Madar, and P. D. Pereira in the team.

If Garthwaite is dropped the selectors will have blundered badly.

The introduction of T. A. Pearce suggests that there is a possibility that he may be fit enough to take his place in the side.

I am not surprised to see Ernie Fincher in the side, as I selected him as twelfth man in my team earlier in the week. A. C. Hamilton's inclusion in favour of Garthwaite is a little bewildering after the latter's very successful debut last season and Hamilton's indifferent displays over the corresponding period. Hamilton, however, has had Interport experience and won his spurs.

The following are the teams:
A. W. Hayward's XI—E. C. Fincher, E. R. Duckitt, T. A. Pearce, P. V. Williams, A. W. Hayward, E. C. Fincher, H. Owen Hughes, A. C. Hamilton, F. Goodwin, A. R. Minu and G. S. Dunkley.

T. A. Pearce's XI—T. E. Pearce, A. M. Rodrigues, C. C. Garthwaite, A. H. Madar, L. Butler, J. McInnes, T. Redmond, S. V. Gittins, F. D. Pereira, G. C. Burnett and S. A. Ismail.

LEAGUE CRICKET COMMENCES.

Recreio Entertain I.R.C. To-day.

The Cricket League will be officially opened this afternoon when the Club de Recreio entertain the Indian Recreation Club in the junior division at King's Park at 2 p.m.

The Indians are making a determined bid to recapture the trophy they lost to Craignower last season, and with the Recreio strengthened by W. A. Reed, formerly of Craignower, and P.M.N. da Silva, another useful batsman, a good game should ensue.

The following are the teams:
I. R. C.—K. Nazarin (Capt.), A. R. Abbas, M. R. Abbas, M. el Arculli, H. Bakar, H. T. M. Barma, A. K. Minu, M. P. Madar, A. R. Sulfad, A. S. Sulfad and A. N. Othar.

Kho's Conqueror To Meet Tsui Wai Pui

Sui Sun-kei, the Batavian lawn tennis player who beat Kho's Hui Hye at the Nanking Games, is to play in an exhibition match against Tsui Wai-pui, the C.R.C. champion, to-morrow afternoon at 3 p.m. on the Chinese Recreation Club's courts at Causeway Bay. A doubles match may also be arranged.

Kno's, the Shanghai champion, was completely outplayed by Hui in straight sets, and is considered better than any local singles player.

DONALD LEACH SCORES CENTURY

Shanghai Team Score Freely Against Rest.

MANY FIELDING ERRORS

Donald Leach, the Shanghai skipper played a magnificent innings for the Shanghai Interport team against the Rest last week-end. Mixed when 58 he scored 109 out of 185 in just over 80 minutes. Included in his innings were fourteen boundaries.

The Interports, aided by numerous fielding errors, had totalled 386 for 9 when stumps were drawn at the conclusion of Saturday's play.

L. F. Stokes, the Northerners' No. 3 batsman, went in No. 11 owing to the fact that he had been playing in a League soccer game during the innings. He helped J. F. N. Mayhew, the wicket-keeper, to add 41 runs in an unbroken tenth wicket partnership.

FOGWELL AND HYNES NOT PLAYING

ATHLETIC MAY SURPRISE KOWLOON

MULLANE LEAVES FOR SHANGHAI

(BY OUTSIDE LEFT.)

THE Club will be without two of their most important men in to-day's First Division soccer encounter against the Police at the Valley, as Fogwell, their goal-keeper, is unable to turn out, and Hynes, the right back, cannot play owing to pressure of work.

These misfortunes have arrived at a crucial period in the Club's progress, for with their full team they would have stood a good chance of securing both points, whereas they are now compelled to play a reserve in goal and C. Wright, the second team's centre half, at right back in partnership with Strange.

These two changes will make a vast difference to the Club's defence, for the Police forward line are very fast and have a very creditable record.

Kowloon, who meet the Athletic on the Railway ground, will not have an easy time and will have to play better than they did last week if they are avoid their second successive defeat.

The Athletic have been playing good football this season and may spring a surprise.

The Navy team is not yet known, but I think that they will probably defeat the Artillery in spite of not being able to turn out their best team.

Fast Naval Forwards
Pardoe will have his work cut out in keeping Langmead in check, while his two very capable halves, Roger and Harris, will have plenty to do watching the Navy's fast moving wingers.

THE SHIELD COMPETITIONS

Club secretaries are reminded that entries for the F.A. Senior and Junior Shield competitions will close on Tuesday.

The Borderers have made several changes in their team to meet the Recreio.

Mullane, the right back is leaving to-day for Shanghai where he will remain for three weeks and his place will be filled by Sgt. Harris who played forward last week.

Nelson, the Borderers' Third Division inside-right, is playing in that position in the first team in the gap made by Harris's removal to right back.

The Recrio are fielding the same team as last week, but they will probably lose the game as their team has not yet been able to settle down.

South China Play To-morrow

South China arrived this morning by the R.M.S. Empress of Canada from Shanghai and their unsuccessful attempt at the Nanking Games, and will make their first appearance here for nearly a month to-morrow when they meet St. Joseph's on their own ground at Caroline Hill.

They will probably play the same team which was defeated by Shanghai in the Final of the Chinese National Meeting in Nanking over Old Merchant Taylors, and should record their second successive win.

Greatly Improved Saints
In St. Joseph's, South China will not be meeting the same team which gave them the championship honours last season, but one of the strongest contenders for this year's honours.

St. Joseph's caused a minor sensation last week when they defeated the strong Kowloon combination by the only goal.
This was really due to the splendid efforts of A. V. Gosano, who was a tower of strength in defence. The latter's speed and deadly tackling will prove a great factor against South China's attack, although I think the latter will succeed in spite of Gosano's efforts in defence.

In the Third division South China are meeting the Borderers at home, and a good game should result. The Borderers have done moderately well, and South China have achieved little more.

The Lincolns should have no difficulty in securing full points from the University, while the Medical Corps are favoured against the Radio.

A Postponed Fixture?

The Air Force have applied for a postponement of their fixture against the Royal Engineers as most of their men are taking part in the Navy Day programme and it will be virtually impossible for them to field a team.

The Recrio who meet the Service Corps at the Valley should emerge victors.

In the Second Division the Navy have an opportunity of securing the "double" by defeating the Artillery and I am almost sure their juniors will rise to the occasion.

South China and the Borderers should both take full points off Kowloon and the Club, respectively.

CHAMPIONS AT MACAO

Battling Horse The Favourite.

BLUE PLANE MAY NOT START

(By RAPIER)

Messrs. Leo Frost, the champion jockey, E. O. Butler, Norman Deitz, and F. M. L. Soares are the leading Hong Kong jockeys who will be taking ponies to the post for the first Champion Stakes in the history of the Macao Jockey Club on the Area Preta track at Macao to-morrow.

As Blue Plane is going out in the first race it is very doubtful whether he will be sent to the post in the Champions, and from what I gather only six ponies are likely to start for the $750 prize.

Battling Horse is the favourite with Bold Lad, Pure Music, Drian, So On, and Venturous in the running for places.

Local racing enthusiasts are reminded that the a.s. Tashan will be leaving Hong Kong at 9.45 a.m. and will leave Macao at 5.30 p.m. The fare is $2.50 single, and $4.00 return.

STEEL COULSON BILLIARDS

Palace Hotel Favoured For Title.

ST. PATRICK'S EXTENDED (BY SPOT BALL.)

The opening games in the Steel Coulson Billiards League resulted in victories for St. Patrick's, the Palace Hotel, and the Garrison Sergeants' Mess. The Police were without a match, while the Lincolns and Borderers have withdrawn from the competition.

Strong favourites for the Championship this year the Palace Hotel made a good start on their own tables against the C.P.O.'s, winning four of the six games and finishing up 272 points ahead on aggregate.

A. J. Osmund, the Colony champion, who is leading the Palace team this year, secured a convincing win by 82 points over Sargent. He made breaks of 81, 31, and 24. The champion was well set for a three-figure break, but failed with a losing hazard at 81.

F. A. Gill, semi-finalist in the Colony Championship, displayed brilliant form when chalking up breaks of 56 and 23 to win by 107 points.

Other breaks of note were Beltrao 81, Silva 29, and Pereira 28.

Remedios Decides Issue

St. Patrick's had a close call in their encounter with the Artillery. They led 3 games to 2 and by 8 points only on the aggregate with one game to play—between Remedios and Pine. Remedios, however, established a lead of 30 half-way through the game and retained his advantage.

Jordan secured the biggest win of the match, beating Harding by 67—a deciding factor in the result of the game.

Sgt. Beeston was absent from the R.A. side, as he is in hospital.

Lt. Regan's 41 Break

The Garrison Sergeants' accounted for the Royal Engineers by 4 games to 2 to give them full league points in their first match. Lt. Regan chalked up the highest break of the match—41.

GREAT U.S. ANTI-DRUG CAMPAIGN

Effort To Purge Pacific Coast.

ADDICTS SPEND $500,000 A DAY

San Francisco.

The incessant warfare to control the smuggling of narcotics into the United States has turned to the Pacific coast.

Mr. Harry D. Smith, who has been in charge of the Federal Narcotic Enforcement Bureau of this district for 14 years, announces that a campaign of unusual proportions for this district is being waged.

Smuggling attempts on the Eastern seaboard have decreased rapidly, he said, since the signing of the international agreement by European and American countries pledging control of the traffic but there has been a consequent large increase in shipments over the Pacific Ocean.

Within the last year success has followed the efforts of the Government agents in the west. In Los Angeles the arrest and sentence of three Japanese and the apprehension in Japan of the alleged ring leader, Smith said, closed the source supply for a considerable portion of the smuggled narcotics reaching this country.

In San Francisco Juda and Isaac Ezra, formerly of Shanghai, and three others were recently sentenced on their pleas of guilty to conspiracy and smuggling charges. The Ezra ring, which Federal authorities say had fingers extending to several cities of the Orient and connections in Europe, has been credited by Federal authorities with having shipped into this country $1,500,000 worth of narcotics within two years.

50,000 Addicts in U. S. A ship which docked recently at a northwest port was found to have $10,500 worth of narcotics on board, while earlier the same vessel was searched at Honolulu and $50,000 worth of narcotics was discovered.

So the battle continues in an effort to end the illicit traffic, which finds its support in the carving of an estimated 150,000 to 500,000 addicts in this country. Federal authorities have placed the cost to these addicts at more than $500,000 a day.

Smugglers, travelling usually in ocean liners, bring their product in rubber sacks strapped around waists of members of the crew, or in other rubber sacks which are dropped overboard with floats so that contact boats can pick them up; in false bottoms of oil drums carved in heels of shoes; in bed (as in the Ezra case); in cavities (posts); and even melted in wax shipments.

No seizure is too small. Mr. Smith declared, or is any street peddler too insignificant, for narcotic agents to fail to investigate to the limit, seeking always to root out the source of supply. The Ezra Ring was uncovered, he said, from the investigation begun with the arrest on a San Francisco Street of a man who had sold $1.50 worth of narcotics.—Reuter.

ENGLAND AN ALL-ELECTRIC COUNTRY

Great National Grid Complete.

PYLONS DESIGNED FOR BEAUTY

London.

The great National Grid Scheme is now complete and with in a few years the Government hopes that every cottage, farm and workshop throughout the country which needs the blessing of electricity will be linked up with it.

Begun a few years ago with the object of making Great Britain all-electric country, on the lines of Switzerland, some 26,268 steel pylons have had to be erected and the grid system now stretches its network of lines and junctions from one end of the country to the other.

The great pipe lines and turbines at Ben Nevis, in Scotland, are but one of the channels through which the vast organisation is fed.

The Grid itself is merely the backbone of the system, since the voltage which it carries is immensely powerful and cannot be utilised until a distributing station, with a sub-network of smaller lines, is

NEW ANTI-ANTHRAX IMMUNIZER

Important Discovery By U.S. Medico.

LESS DANGEROUS ANTIGEN

Cincinnati.

Anthrax, the scourge which has swept the world since first reported in the Bible as the "murder" of Exodus, may lose its last terrors for man in a new type of immunity discovered at the University of Cincinnati.

The first anthrax immunizer was made by Pasteur in 1880 from anthrax bacteria. The new Cincinnati antidote is taken from much less dangerous sources which have no apparent connection with anthrax. It was developed by Dr. George E. Rockwell of the Department of Bacteriology and Hygiene, College of Medicine.

The new immunizer is the red corpuscles into the bodies of rabbits, intraperitoneally. After two weeks he inoculated these rabbits with virulent anthrax bacilli. The animals were not even made ill.

But exactly similar anthrax germs proved 100 per cent. lethal to rabbits which had not been immunized with the sheep corpuscles.

This experiment taps some recent discoveries by several scientists in a new field of disease immunization. Heretofore, like the Pasteur anthrax bacilli, most immunity has come from the germ which caused the disease. This immunizing substance would not work against any other disease. It was called an antigen.

Recently scientists have found that other types of antigens exist. They are not peculiar to one source, like the old anthrax protector. Furthermore, they are widely distributed in many types of living tissues. They are called the "heterophile antigens," and their immunity "heterophile immunity."

Sheep corpuscles are only one of their sources. More important, it has been found that they can generate "immunizing" anti-bodies when taken by mouth. This is usually safer for humans than inoculation.—Reuter.

built to feed off the major supply. There has been a certain amount of criticism of the Grid on aesthetic grounds and complaints have been made that it is ruining the appearance of the countryside. The pylons themselves were designed by an eminent architect to look as inoffensive as possible and are, if anything, an improvement upon those which are to be seen all over Switzerland and Northern Italy, often in the heart of beauty spots, and about which complaints are rarely received from lovers of the beautiful.

EMERGENCY POWERS DECRIED

U.S. Congressman's Attack.

"PROUD STATES RELEGATED"

Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The end of the constitution as the basis for the American form of government in the next fifty years was forecast by Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, in addressing the 38th Annual Convention of the Maryland State Bar Association.

Mr. Beck asserted that as a result of the emergency measures now in force "the once proud and conscious states have been relegated to the ignominious status of subordinate police provinces."

He added that the overwhelming majority of the people did not really care whether the constitution has been violated or not.

"It is unquestionably true," he added, "that the constitution was based upon the individualistic state of society and that it has required considerable adaptation to make it work for what is now a collectivistic state."

The speaker declared that there had been little attempt to reconcile the emergency measures with the constitution altogether with the avowed high purpose of saving the nation itself.

"It is as bad for a nation as for an individual to lead double life—and our nation is now leading such a life when it is guilty of hypocritical pretension of adhering to the constitution as a sacred and binding compact and simultaneously ignoring practice of its basic theories. Whatever our future form of government may be, at least let us be honest with ourselves."—Reuter.

America's Monetary Policy.

Business men of the United States feel that relief is not coming to order. What is blocking the way is uncertainty about the future of the monetary system. Will the Government cause the currency to be drastically inflated? Here, as all through the piece, two schools are struggling to obtain predominance in the councils of the President. One which has always favoured stabilisation of the external value of the currency is willing that the dollar as now depreciated should be stabilised on the present value in regard to sterling, about 85 per cent. below the gold dollar. The other school, which sees in inflation a means of getting prices back to the level of 1924-25, wants inflation to a degree which it believes will accomplish its object. Both schools urge that in order to clear the air the President should make a more definite announcement as to which course his Administration intends to follow. Prices in the United States have risen, partly because the bottom of the depression was reached shortly before or just as the President assumed office, and certainly because of the fear of inflation. Wholesale houses rushed in to buy goods because they believed that inflation when it occurred would cause further rises. Production was stimulated, but little of the increased production went into consumption and ultimate use, in proof of which is cited the fact that the banks experienced a large increase in their acceptance of warehouse bills. Production went into stock. Though by percentage the largest increase in price has taken place in primary products, farmers do not consider it sufficient to give them a convenient surplus over and above the sternest demands for inflation. A crisis is impending. Politicians believe that the people are determined to seek a way out by the road of increased supplies of money, and they are pressing for the will of the people to be obeyed. But the President through his hesitancy has shown that he cannot see any good likely to come from following their demands. The theory is that increased prices arising through inflation will give increased purchasing power, but theory and practice only harmonise when the increased costs which rising prices bring about do not swallow up all the difference between the old price and the new. The burden on producers is one of debt, and producers benefit by increased prices only if their added costs of production are less than the increase in the price of their commodity, so that their surplus is greater and they are better able to meet interest payments. The agitation which is now proceeding in the United States on the part of the primary producers must be taken as evidence that the higher prices brought about by the expectations of inflation — and of inflation so far there has been nothing beyond expectation — have not yet lessened in the producers' favour the gap between production costs and prices. Nor does it seem likely that actual inflation of the currency would achieve by itself the object sought. Use must be made of the monetary facilities placed at the disposal of business and industry. Even now there are large untouched facilities. Some authorities put the amount at 5,000,000,000 dollars. An addition of 1,000,000,000 dollars to the circulation of 5,601,000,000 dollars would hardly encourage the use of the present untouched facilities. One thing is lacking. Confidence that any prosperity that may come from inflation will be sustained is wanting. The faith of many people in inflation has some grounds to support it, but it is deficient in one element, the element ensuring that if in the end commodities have to be exchanged for money the money will be money of substance. Periods of great prosperity in the past have been coincident with great increases in the supply of gold, and so with great increases in the supply of circulating money. The people increased their consumption of commodities, their business increased its use of capital goods. There was no hoarding of commodities — a flight from money — on account of the people fearing for the future value of their money. They knew that if they desired it they could turn their commodities into gold, and that gold had a purchasing power to all intents and purposes the same as the world over. Liquid balances were not swollen to gargantuan dimensions, and in the world capital markets were welcomed instead of feared as now. There was no flight from money, and there was no inflation, if increased in currency may be termed inflation, but it

Screen Star On The Stage

Miss Mary Pickford's proposed appearance on the legitimate stage means really a return to her former occupation, for when both she and the film were not much more than in their infancy, she was doing the round of such familiar juvenile parts as Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and little Willie Carlyle in "East Lynne" — a character in which a performer of a very different type, the late Alfred Lester, made his stage debut.

Miss Pickford, the daughter of a ship's purser who died when she was very tiny, first appeared on the stage at the age of five as Cissy Denver in "The Silver King."

Lord Hailsham's Plea

Lord Hailsham has repudiated no less strongly than Mr. Jardine in his "In Quest of the Ashes" the suggestion that the English bowlers in Australia bowled with intent to hurt the batsmen.

But he is also reported as having said that if the tactics then pursued seem likely to cause ill-feeling, they had better be dropped.

This in the mouth of a President of the M.C.C., seems to mark the end of the controversy. It is wondered whether Lord Hailsham in his days at the Bar would have advised a client to enter a plea of "not guilty but I won't do it again."

Old Mrs. Jones entered the bedroom where her husband lay ill. She was trembling from head to foot with indignation.

"What's the matter, wife?" asked old Mr. Jones.

"Matter!" she cried. "I just went up to the vicarage to tell them you weren't any better, and they wanted me to bring you back a bottle of wine."

"Have ye got it?" he asked eagerly.

"No, not me, indeed!" said Mrs. Jones. "I heard the vicar's wife tell that it had been in the cellar since the year nineteen hundred and one, so when she handed it to me I just walked off without a word. None of that nasty stale stuff for me, I thought."

was inflation controlled and limited by gold. Business and industry and social life had confidence in gold. When the United States regained confidence in its currency, then the progress to recovery will quicken. Towards that end the financial party proposes the stabilisation of the dollar with the pound on the present value. That there would be no further depreciation of the two great currencies, terms of each other would at least give confidence to business in the United States.

AIR FORCE OR NAVY?

THE exercises recently carried out by the Royal Navy and the Air Force in the North Sea have aroused controversy over the relative merits of the two Services.

Such controversy is misguided. The exercises have taught valuable lessons both to the R.A.F. and the Navy.

Those who believe that the Navy has been proved ineffective are answered below by Admiral Harper; and Colonel Etherton deals with the vital importance of developing British aviation.

The Navy Cannot Be Superseded

By Vice-Admiral
J. E. T. HARPER.

who compiled the official record of the Battle of Jutland and wrote "The Truth About Jutland."

There is considerable danger that the combined exercises by the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force will lead the public to draw wrong conclusions.

It would be regrettable if such exercises raised an Air versus Navy controversy. Both defence forces have their uses; both are essential to our security; neither force can act without genuine co-operation with the other. Aircraft are weapons as essential, in these days, to our Navy and our Army as are guns and tanks. All weapons have their limitations, but none more so than aircraft.

Valuable lessons will, it is hoped, be learned from the recent Navy and Air exercises, but it would be folly for anyone to suggest that the result could prove that either the navy or the air was redundant.

The conditions under which these particular exercises were carried out were even more artificial than the conditions prevailing in most exercises between sections of the Fleet.

The Fleet, with the assistance of the air-craft normally attached to it, endeavoured to "bombard" a town on the coast of Scotland. The Fleet had to approach the coast within a pre-arranged and limited area. The land force of aircraft was engaged in locating the various units of the Fleet and, having located them, endeavoured to prevent the ships from approaching within gun range of their objective.

The method of attacking the ships would normally be by dropped bombs, or torpedoes. In actual warfare it would be unlikely that coast defence aircraft would have accurate knowledge of the time or place of intended attack in time to concentrate their forces beforehand in the desired locality.

Having ascertained the position of the invading force and having concentrated their forces, the aircraft, fully loaded with bombs and torpedoes, would have to attack at some distance from the shore; and to achieve their object of disabling the hostile ships, would have to hit and hit often in the face of concentrated attack by the ships' aircraft and the ships' guns.

In the recent exercises the aircraft did not carry bombs, thus saving much weight, which increased their speed and radius of action. They did not even carry dummy bombs. There would be no conclusive proof that the desired hits could be made. The bombers had not, for obvious reasons, to (Continued on Page 11.)

AVIATION—AND THE FUTURE

By Colonel
P. T. ETHERTON.

Commanded the 51st (London) Anti-Aircraft Brigade, London Air Defence, 1924-9, and was Honorary Organising Secretary of the Houston-Mount Everest Flight.

At the naval manoeuvres operating off Scotland, for the first time in her history Britain entrusted her defence to airplanes.

The Senior Service was given the role of attacker, defence being left to a "blue" air force of ninety aircraft.

Flying at terrific speed, and almost invisible until the last minute, bombers and air torpedo machines dropped bombs upon the "Red" fleet of battleships and destroyers in the North Sea. These exercises have revived the old question whether the taxpayer's money is better invested in building mightier Dreadnoughts or in strengthening the forces of the air. Which is it to be—wings, or the modern prototype of the old wooden walls?

The warship of the present day has taken hundreds of years to evolve. The evolution of the airplane to its present pitch of efficiency, on the other hand, has occurred within a very short space of time. We are rapidly reaching the time when aircraft will be able to fly in all weathers. That was one of the lessons of the Houston-Mount Everest Flight.

Aircraft has the advantage of comparative cheapness: for the price of one battle cruiser 200 airplanes can be built.

Mobile And Deadly
There is also the advantage of greater mobility. Warships swallow up the vital factor of time in getting from place to place, but a few squadrons of aircraft stationed at, say, Scarborough or Weymouth could be moved with great rapidity to any threatened place.

The recent air-naval exercises will have the effect of speeding up aviation development. Each day sees definite and striking progress in the science. The marksmanship of aircraft is making wonderful progress.

It will become possible with these improvements in workmanship to hit the target from a greater height, so that airmen can operate with a much greater degree of immunity from anti-aircraft guns.

The two most important units of the British Royal Air Force are the Hawker "Harts" and the Fairey "Furies." These machines can climb 1800 feet almost before you realise that they left the ground. In one dizzy minute they have reached an altitude four times as high as St. Paul's Cathedral.

They can attack at 240 miles an hour, and take up into the clouds, slung beneath the fuselage, a large (Continued on Page 11.)

THE CHUNG YANG FESTIVAL.

Celebrated Throughout China Yesterday.

Yesterday, the ninth day of the ninth moon, according to the old Chinese calendar, the Chung Yang Festival was generally observed throughout China.

The traditional method of celebrating the day is, wherever possible, to mount to the top of the nearest hill and enjoy a picnic meal there. Yesterday, despite the cloudy and uncertain weather, numbers of Chinese kept the festival among the hills of Hong Kong, while many Chinese schools were closed, to afford the children a holiday.

In the villages of all parts of China the day marks the end of kite-flying for the year.

Teachers Must Retain Their Reserve.

AMERICAN TOWN'S RULING

Glassboro, New Jersey.

A code for the personal conduct of school teachers has been framed by the Glassboro Board of Education.

It provides that "teachers are to be reserved in their social relationship with pupils, to maintain strictly the place of chaperons at school functions and to have regard for the preponderance of local public opinion against smoking by women."

The Board warns that while it respects the right of individual freedom, dismissal awaits any teacher whose reputation for personal conduct may to any degree be considered detrimental to the desired influence of that teacher in the school or community. — Reuter.

Hong Kong Programme

Thus afternoon, when H.M. Dockyard gates are opened at 1.30 p.m., residents of Hong Kong will be given an opportunity of making a first hand study of the sailor's life in the Royal Navy and of various types of warships, from an Aircraft Carrier to a Submarine.

This is the first time in the history of the Colony that the general public will be allowed in H.M. Dockyard and on board British warships in these waters.

An aerial display by machines disembarked from the Aircraft Carrier Eagle, will be given in the harbour, thus enabling the public to see modern fighting aircraft handled by the Fleet Air Arm pilots. The seaplanes will start from Kai Tak Aerodrome.

Destroyers in action in the basin, the destruction of an enemy submarine, aircraft in action, and the cinema showing of naval films will be features of a wide and varied programme.

In addition there will be diving displays continuous throughout the afternoon by Naval Divers in the North East corner of the basin. The public will be able to talk by telephone to the divers at work and to learn the principles upon which diving is carried out.

A speedboat for a harbour trip to view the fleet will also be available.

An amusement park with an aerial railway, chutes, Aunt Sallies and other special features will be provided for the children, while various naval tableaux and a tea dance on the Tamar, with special facilities for watching the displays will be provided for adults.

Destroyers in Action

The first half of the programme will comprise "Crossing the Line," on the West Wall east, destroyers in action in the Naval Basin, and a howitzer display on the football ground.

An aerial display by units from H.M. Aircraft Carrier Eagle, which will be one of the big attractions of the day takes place during the tea interval.

Following tea, a display will be given by the Pipers of the 3rd Jat Regiment and Retreat will be

Mr. Yeung Chu-nan, father and coach of Miss Yeung Sau King, said the Games were as good as could be expected. "The games show something of the reawakening of our people," he said.

Miss Yeung's Feats.

Miss Yeung Sau King, the Colony's champion lady swimmer, was interviewed by the China Mail in her cabin early this morning. With her were her father and mother and her younger sister, Miss Yeung Sau Chun, who secured second place in the 200 metres. The cabin was gaily decked with baskets of flowers given her by admirers in both Nanking and Shanghai.

Approached on the subject of matrimony she laughed and said, "Don't be silly; I am still studying." Miss Yeung, who secured the "treble" in Nanking and enabled Hong Kong to win the Ladies' Championship from Canton, is only 15 years old, and is a student at the Chung Tak College. She was honoured during her visit North when she was asked to christen the first Nanking-Pukow ferry boat.

China's leading lady aquatic star won no fewer than fifteen prizes at the Nanking Games.

Kwok Chun Hang, who secured places in three events in the Swimming Championship, said that he was not considering professionalism. "No, I am just an amateur. I hope I will have better luck next time," he said.

He is the holder of the 200 Metres Breast Stroke Colony record, having bettered the British National record figures.

NEURALIA ARRIVES WITH WORCESTERS

Originally expected on Thursday evening, but caught by typhoon weather and badly delayed, the transport Neuralia reached Hong Kong safely this morning and berthed at Holt's Wharf shortly after seven o'clock.

Despite the lateness of her arrival it was found possible to play the two matches against the Lincolns. At 9.15 a.m. the Worcesters disembarked from the transport and at 9.30 commenced the route march to the Kowloon Football Ground via Gascoyne Road.

As the Neuralia was obliged to sail for Shanghai at noon, it was of course impossible to hold the reunion dinners which had been originally arranged to celebrate the traditional friendship existing between the two regiments, which dates back to 1846 when they fought side by side at the decisive battle of Solfron.

After the football match, which was witnessed by some 700 men of the Worcesters and 400 of the Lincolns, the two regiments marched in company to Holt's Wharf, where the Worcesters re-embarked at 11.45 a.m.

WORCESTERS BEAT LINCOLNS AT FOOTBALL

M.C., who is relieving Brigadier G. Fleming, C.B.E., D.S.O. in Shanghai, witnessed the match. He was for four years Commanding Officer of the Lincolns. Lt.-Col. E. J. de C. Boys M.C., the Commanding Officer of the Lincolns, was also present.

LINCOLNS BOYS WIN

After leading by 3 goals to nil at half-time the Lincolns Boys beat their Worcester rivals by that margin after only ten minutes play in the second half.

Driver, Millar, and Johnson scored the goals, while Dyson was the outstanding player on the field. Renvor and Chapman were prominent for the Lincolns.

To-Day's Short Story.

THE SIXTH SHOT

By Samuel A. Derieux.

THERE was a dance going on in Steve Abernathy's house, far up in the Big Smoky Mountains. The fire roared and crackled in the big broad chimney; the barrel of elder day by the window, rocking on its stays; the old fiddler sawed at his fiddle and called the figures; the men came swinging down the aisle of girls, snatched their partners, and whirled away; the low-ceiled room rang with shouts and laughter.

But there was trouble brewing, too. For Steve's girl Phoebe was dancing first with Bud Campbell then with Nank Morgan. She didn't mean any harm; she was just turned woman, and the prettiest in the mountains at that. It was the most natural thing in the world for her while she danced with Bud to throw smiles over her shoulder at Nank, and while she danced with Nank to throw smiles over her shoulder at Bud.

First Bud Campbell stood in a corner, his chest rising and falling as if he had run a race, his blond head almost touching the rafters, the grin on his face not good to look at as he watched her whirl away with Nank. A young giant was Bud, just turned eighteen, hardly more than a boy—but boys are men in the mountains as soon as they are ready to love and fight.

Phoebe was "his gal"; she had been his ever since his trousers lengthened to his shoe-tops and her dresses lengthened to her ankles. That was the big fact in Bud's life, that Phoebe was "his gal." Nobody had ever dared dispute it until to-night.

Then Nank Morgan, who had dared dispute it, stood in the same corner, lean, lank, swarthy, dressed in "city clothes," his mouth drawn tight as a wire, his black appraising eyes full of the devil that possessed him as he watched her whirl away with Bud. He was older than Bud in years; he was ages older in experience. He had been away two years working in town, had come home on a visit, and had dropped in unexpectedly on this dance to-night. He had found Phoebe Aber-naty, a girl when he left, now grown into a woman, and very good to dance with. He was not the man to respect another's claim. What Nank Morgan wanted he took.

The two men were neighbours. They had grown up together, fished and hunted together, gone to frolics together. They had been friends when Nank went away; had met as friends when Nank dropped in to-night. Then Phoebe Abernathy had smiled at Nank, for girls like men who have been away, seen the world, and have come back. Then she had danced with Nank and thrown smiles over her shoulder at Bud.

Old Steve had had a pull or two at his jug and turned in early. He didn't know anything about it—he wouldn't have minded if he had.

But there was one in the room who took it all in, and who knew what was coming. He sat by the chimney-corner where the firelight fell upon him, patting his foot and puffing his pipe and stroking his beard—old Bill McCordle, who never missed a frolic, old Bill who had seen more fights and knew more ways of fighting than any other man in the mountains.

MONDAY'S STORY

Monday's story will be "Ways of Escape," by J. D. Bersford.

He could tell you how to fight with knives or pistols, with shot-guns or rifles—just how far to stand, just how to play the game as it ought to be played, what had been done and what hadn't. In another sphere of life he would have been a scholar, maybe a professor of Greek.

He knew both these young men who glared at each other over the heads of the rollicking and heedless crowd; he had known their fathers before them, and their grandfathers, and he knew that they came of fighting stock. He knew they would not "take it out" in looking. Now and then he nodded his head, then went on puffing his pipe and tapping his foot. It would be bright to-night in Dead Man's Field, and the field lay on the way home for Bud and for Nank and for him.

Once he thought the fight was coming right here in the room, and he rose to his feet like a bearded lion and dropped his pipe into his pocket. He had his rules, his ethics, his ideals. A room full of people was no place in which to start a row. Women would scream and meddle, likely faint or get shot. Then, too, a man who forced a fight in a crowd was usually a blusterer, who counted on interference.

The fiddle had stopped and Phoebe was talking eagerly up into Bud's face, trying, after it was too late, as women always do try, to stop the conflagration she had started. Nank was standing close behind her, as if he owned her, thought it was Bud's dance—old Bill had kept account of that. Suddenly the fiddler started up, and Nank snatched her from under Bud's very eyes and whirled her into the dance. Bud took a step, after them, his face white, his eyes wild; old Bill started forward then. But with the dancers whirling all round him and bumping into him, Bud stopped a moment. Then he turned and stumbled out of the room, slamming the door behind him.

"He'll be waitin' out thar in the yard," said the old man to himself. He sat down once more, puffing his pipe.

Old Bill was the first out when the dance broke up—the first to reach Bud waiting down there by the road, the first to catch and hold him when the oath rang out and Bud reached for his gun and started for Nank, coming out with "the rest of the crowd."

"This ain't the place!" he said, holding to Bud's wrist with a grip that cut and looking up into his face with steady eyes.

Then Phoebe Abernathy came running through the crowd straight to "Bud" where he stood, with the old man holding him; just outside the heavy shadow cast in the moonlight, as he had been standing when the old man reached him. She had been hiding in that shadow—which was black as ink—hiding in ambush, waiting.

"You coward!" she cried up into Bud's face, her breast rising and falling.

Confidence

is not permanently attained by fixing advertisements which unscrupulously promise more than they can keep, but can only be achieved through the quality of a product. Do not listen to persuasive words to buy preparations from an obscure origin. Do not forget that your health is endangered. Place full confidence in a product which has been found very useful for more than 50 years.

High up in the air this time old Bill tossed that two-bit piece, their eyes trying to follow it as it went out of sight in the darkness. It seemed to stop up there awhile as if lingering, then off yonder a little way it hit the frozen ground with a ting. It bounced, spun round,
then rolled off into a rut beside the road.

They all bent down now over the spot where it seemed to have run
there in the deep rut, while old Bill
pulled the dead weeds and grass
carefully, tenderly, almost lovingly aside. There was no sound but that of hand-breathing men. Even old Bill's face looked queer and drawn as he struck the match. They peered down into the rut washed full of silvery sand that glistened in the flare of the match. There was no quarter here.

Further down the road now the old man, his hands trembling, pulled the dead grass aside, struck another match, and looked up and down the shining sand, then still farther, then back, his movements
growing more eager, his face worried.

He struck fire to the dead grass
and weeds that overhung the gully
and the edge of the road, the flames,
tiny at first, then brighter, lighting
up their faces like crimson footlights. Bud went back to the log, sat down, and buried his face in his hands. Nank stood beside the old man, watching the flames and the smoke that dimmed the face of the moon now. The old man got down once more on his knees, struck a match, and peered up and down the gully.

"Here it be!" he announced.
Bud rose and hurried to them,
and once more they all stooped while
old Bill held close to the fugitive
face of the coin his last match.
There was a moment's silence; then
Bud staggered to his feet.
"I'm a dead man," he said, and turned away, "—dead an' bound for hell."

He took his place beside the rock
in the road, tearing his shirt open at the throat as if the night were hot.

"Hurry up," he said.
"Is there anything, Bud?" asked Nank as he took his place with the gun.

"It don't make no difference now.
I've had my fling. Only you can tell my ol' ma it was fair. You can tell my ol' ma it was fair—
can't tell Phoebe Abernathy. I ain't go-coward. That's all, boys.
This here's fun; I say. Them's my last words."

Old Bill took his pipe out of his mouth. It had gone out long ago.
"Ready," he asked.
Yonder the gun came up slowly,
steadily. Behind it Nank's face
was white as paper.

"Ready," said Bud. "This here's a pretty night, ain't it, old Bill McCordle—moonshine an' all!"

"Shoot!" said old Bill and swallowed hard.
Still Nank stood, pistol level, face
like paper.

"Shoot!" cried old Bill and started toward him. "God A'mighty,
man—don't start! That lookin'!

AIR FORCE OR NAVY?

THE NAVY CANNOT BE SUPERSEDED.

face the menace of shot and shell
from the guns of the ships.

Weather Most Important Factor
Truly artificial conditions these,
with the dice loaded against the navy. The most important factor,
however, is yet to be mentioned—
The Weather. It was decided that if the weather was unsuitable for flying on Friday the exercise would not commence until Saturday; if unsuitable on Saturday the exercise could, by mutual consent, be postponed until Monday.

Would a hostile fleet wishing to bombard or otherwise harass our coasts in time of war be inclined to arrange the time of attack so that the weather was suitable for the defending aircraft?

Not only defenders, but attackers also, would be affected by the absence of aircraft; but an attacking fleet could bombard without
the assistance of the air; whereas,
in unsuitable weather, no defence
could be made if only aircraft were available for defence.

It is the duty of our defence
forces—our Peace Machines—not only to save our coasts from invasion, but to preserve the peace by quelling disorders when they first arise. Invasions and disorders
will not wait on weather reports.

There has been a marked tendency in certain quarters in recent years to deify sea power; but let us not imagine that air power can supercede it so far as our country,
our Empire, is concerned. Our well-being, even our very existence, in this country depends on sea-borne trade.

Artificially designed peace-time exercises are of benefit to the country because of the valuable technical experience gained by those who serve in our defence
forces. The theoretical result,
however, whatever it may be,
should not be taken as an indication that our navy can be superseded by any other arm as our first line of defence.

Our sea-girt Empire has a good friend in the sea; but that good friend must be treated with justice. Neglect, or abuse, may cause
it to become our worst enemy.

The pistol came slowly down;
strange and quiet came the voice of Nank: "I done shot."

A moment the old man stood, uncertain, uncomprehending, wondering if the gun had shot and he had not heard. But yonder stood Bud alive, and there had been no flash
of flame from the pistol. Suddenly the suspicion rushed through his mind that even Nank Morgan had lost his nerve and had not pulled the trigger. Then an inkling of what had really happened dawned
on him, and he hurried to Nank,
the suspicion and the question both
in his excited eye.

"You played a trick on us," pant-
ed Nank, his eyes blazing like live
coals. "You never stuck no cartridge in this gun."

With hands that trembled, the old man snatched the gun away
from him, unbreached it, and exposed the cartridge. "Strike a match!" he ordered. "Hold it close here! I played a trick, did I? See that cartridge? See that ar dent in the cap whar the plunger hit? See it? I played a trick, did I?"

He counted the empty cells back to the one that lay under the hammer. There were four of them.
The old gun that had barked faithfully in many a fight had "snapped"
in this—snapped on the second shot.
"That would have been me," said Nank.

"It is you, young man!"
Old Bill did not speak with resentment; that had left him now.
It was just a question of doing the right and fair thing, of seeing through to the end this fight that had begun. He turned to Bud,
coming toward them like a sleep-
walker.

"Bud Campbell," he said, "this here gun snapped on the second shot. That shot was yours—that shot is still yours. If the gun snaps again, it is still yours—you're till the gun do go off. Hit's the right
an' fair thing; hit's the only right
an' fair thing."

A moment Bud stood looking down sternly into the old man's unflinching eyes. Then he cried out to him: "That's fair! That's fair!
come back to them from the border
of the silent field."

"No—by God, no! I don't want no shot—fair or no-fair! Git or
it."

AVIATION—AND THE FUTURE.

number of bombs, which can be released either singly or in salvos,
so that a squadron of 10 or 12 bombers engaged in simultaneous salvo
fire on the same target would provide an interesting little sum of destruction. There are few things more drastic than a tremendous bombing attack carried out from the air with all the deadly speed and energy of modern invention.

In all, Britain has 1434 aircraft
at her disposal. Italy has 2386, France 3000, and Russia 1500 airplanes in the first line, but her grand total is unknown.

Airminded Italy
The airmindedness of Italy is quite remarkable, and at present
well in advance of other nations.
This, I believe, is largely due to the lessons learned by Signor Mussolini himself when in the air force.

I regard Lord Wakefield as one of our great aviation protagonists.
He is trying to do for Britain what Mussolini has already done for Italy. He realises to the full the vital truism that nothing stands
still in the air.

In Iraq, North Africa, and on the North-West Frontier of India in particular, the Air Force has a great sphere of protective action.

I was particularly impressed with the admiration and awe our Everest airplanes possessed for the average Indian mind. Old men walked in, in some cases more than 200 miles, to get a glimpse of the "wonder birds" of which they had heard such fabulous tales. There was also some fear that the dignity
of the gods who inhabit the higher peaks of the Himalayas might be outraged by the "birds" who could look down upon them! We unwittingly established an immense respect for aviation.

After long experience of Oriental, and especially frontier,
mentality, I am convinced that the British Government, in retaining
the right to carry out air-bombing
on the frontier, is acting wisely.
It is at once the most economical
method both in lives and money,
and has a salutary moral effect,
which is more than half the battle
in the East.

no gall! Git out of my way; git out of my way with that gun. Nank.
Me an' you have been to hell together. Here's my hand, Nank Morgan!"

And so they shook hands there in Dead Man's Field, looking into one another's haggard eyes.

"It's all my fault," said Nank. "I didn't have no business buttin' in to-night. She's yours, Bud. She don't care nothin' for me. I ought not to have buttin' in. I'm going back to town to-morrow."

Old Bill McCordle turned away
and shuffled on down the road alone in the moonlight. Back there was no place for him. Young men
didn't know their minds any more.
The world had fallen on degenerate days. He had been swept aside like the prophets of old by a generation
that regarded him not. Behind him lay the moonlit field. Below him the valley and the shadows. A mile, down the road, he passed the cabin of the Campbells. There was a light in the window. The Widow Campbell was sitting up for Bud.

Farther on, he passed the cabin of the Morgans. There was a light in the window here, too.
"Things ain't like they used to be," he said, and shook his head.
But there was a grin on his hard
old face as the moonlight fell upon
it.

GOLD HOARDING IN AMERICA.

Boston Employee
Arrested.

Boston, Mass., To-day.

The first arrest under the United States gold hoarding order was made yesterday, when Mr. Gerald T. Driscoll, a city employee, was arrested on a Federal indictment. He is charged with hoarding U.S.$10,000 in gold which he is alleged to have withdrawn from a Federal Reserve bank in March and with failing to inform the authorities.

A note issued by President Roosevelt in April, ordered the return of all gold over U.S.$100 held by individuals. The penalty for hoarding was fixed at a fine of U.S.$10,000 or 10 years' imprisonment.—Reuter.
